

HDEMIA

In brief

An initiative promoted by the EE&PM area of the LUISS Business School in partnership with Amicucci Formazione. Hdemia is a point of reference for the professional development of all those who work in education and the development of human resources, people and knowledge management.

What is it?

Hdemia@Learning Architectures is a point of reference for the professional development of all those who work in the following fields:

- training and development of human resources
- people management
- knowledge management
- human resources
- management and organisational planning
- organisational communication

Through Hdemia a permanent laboratory is built for the formation of internal academies, a space for meeting and discussion, on innovative themes for training, learning and knowledge; it is divided into a series of initiatives and services such as workshops, seminars, informational newsletters, online platforms, intercompany meetings and much more.

What is it for?

- helping individuals and companies to meet the challenge of change by developing continuous learning Architectures which put the person at the centre
- facilitating the construction of welcoming learning environments that recognise and enhance diversity
- stimulating the innovation of learning processes through the use of multiple languages, methods and increasingly new and engaging content