PROJECT WORK

In brief

myProjectWork is an app which makes training practical and measurable. It can also be used for the creation of projects for improvement.

What is it?

A "software of thought" that guides people, on a practical and methodological level, in the formulation of ideas for improving business. The training becomes practical and evolves into a true business partner of the company, contributing with innovative projects and constant improvement.

myProjectWork guides the user through the main stages of preparing for courses for improvement:

- analysis of the situation
- generation of ideas for improvement
- planning for putting into effect the ideas for improvement
- communication and sales based on the idea

It is useful for making training practical and turning every training event into an occasion to produce ideas for improvement, spreading internal consultancy and making results visible and measurable.

What is it for?

- giving substance to the company's training initiatives
- evaluating the effectiveness of training courses
- encouraging behaviour centred on the spirit of initiative and proactivity, stimulating participants to create solutions of general use for the company
- encouraging involvement
- bringing out and collecting people's ideas
- capitalising on individual contributions for the betterment of the company
