

TRAINING EDUCATORS

In brief

Training courses for designers and company teachers. The educator, who is required to have an increasingly important role in the innovation of training, evolves towards the role of “director” of the training program and learns all the methodologies applied in blended courses.

What is it?

The training of educators is divided into several courses, from training internal teachers, who are experts in technical content but not of training methodologies, to updating senior educators on new didactic methodologies and new learning environments, to training developers of e-learning content and designers of online learning environments.

What is it for?

- creating increased autonomy in the management of training by a company's employees
- innovating learning systems
- involving a network of collaborators with various functions in the management of corporate training

www.architettidiapprendimento.it